On May 17, IOSCO, after an assessment of the accounting standards issued by the IASB, found that these countries usually impose high government levies, have non-harmonized procedures among commercial, financial, logistic and regulatory institutions and use modern technologies insufficiently. As a result, the IMF Executive Board agreed to a shared ownership approach to the preparation of ROSCs whereby different institutions take primary responsibility for undertaking assessments in different areas. Others are in the process. In Transparency International TI developed a five-year project aims to improve development outcomes by increasing the effectiveness with which governments allocate and use their resources.
